

Management Matters

VOLUME 12 NUMBER 2 FALL 2014

Update on Activities and Initiatives from PMRA President

There is an abundance of news to report on PMRA's activities in the last year.

Bradley Wright, Chair of the Department of Public Administration at the University of Georgia assumed the Managing Editor position of JPART in January, taking over from the able Craig Thomas, Evans School of Public Affairs at the University of Washington who completed a five year term as Managing Editor.

Ken Meier, Department of Political Science at Texas A & M University continues his strong leadership as Editor-in-Chief (EIC) of JPART. In July, EIC Meier reported on the recently released citation counts for journals that show JPART at the top of the list with a five year impact factor of 3.5535, and number one in both the two year and five year indices.

Congratulations to all our editors and published authors for this very strong affirmation of JPART's quality and contribution to our field's research.

First, let me cover PMRA conference updates, and second, I'll briefly cover PMRA committee work.

The 2014 Public Management Research Association Conference was held at Seoul National University in Seoul, Korea June 29th to July 1st. This was PMRA's third international conference.

It was a very successful conference with about 140 attendees from all over the world. Dr. Tobin Im, Graduate School of Public Administration (GSPA) at Seoul National University was the conference co-chair together with program co-chair Richard Walker, City University of Hong Kong. GSPA Dean Junki Kim and his faculty were all gracious hosts and the conference sessions created substantive dialogue on our common research interests. I want to extend our sincere thanks to GSPA for hosting PMRA scholars in such a first-class manner.

Looking ahead to next year's 2015 Public Management Research Association Conference scheduled for June 11-13 in Minneapolis, Minnesota at the Hubert H. Humphrey School of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota, the Call for Proposals is out, and the website for the conference is up and avail-

In This Issue

Update on PMRA Activities and Initiatives from PMRA President	1
Comings & Goings	2
2015 PMRA Conference Call for Proposals	3
UNC-Chapel Hill will Host 2017 PMRA Conference ...	4
Position Announcements ...	5

Newsletter Editor:
Suzette Myser
University of Kansas
myser6@ku.edu

Morgen S. Johansen has been awarded tenure and promoted to Associate Professor and is now Associate Department Chair of the Public Administration Program at the University of Hawaii.

Robert Durant (American University) published Why Public Sector Matters: Public Managers, Public Policy, and Democracy (Palgrave Macmillan).

Chao Guo (University of Pennsylvania) and Wolfgang Bielefeld (Indiana University) recently published their book, Social Entrepreneurship: An Evidence-based Approach to Creating Social Value (John Wiley & Sons).

Susan Webb Yackee (University of Wisconsin-Madison) was promoted to Full Professor, and she is currently serving as the Director of the La Follette School of Public Affairs.

Allen Lai (ESSEC Business School) has been named the Programme Director, MSc Management of Health Industries, ESSEC Business School. He is also currently serving as Director of the Institute of Health Economics and Management (Asia Pacific), also at ESSEC Business School.

Kate Destler received her Ph.D. in 2014 from the Evans School of Public Affairs at the University of Washington after successfully defending able at <http://www.cce.umn.edu/Public-Management-Research-Conference/index.html>. You'll find the full Call for Proposals below, so please send your proposals in by October 31st to Conference Co-Chairs John Bryson and Jodi Sandfort.

The PMRA Board has been working on issues related to governance and finance. After a thorough review of financial issues chaired by President-elect Don Moynihan, the PMRA Board created an Investment Committee to oversee PMRA's finances and investments.

PMRA Board member Brint Milward has chaired a Governance Subcommittee to review election procedures and bylaws updates. That report is forthcoming, and will be in time to be considered for 2015 elections for the PMRA board and officers.

Finally, the PMRA Board will meet on November 6th at the joint NASPAA/APPAM national conferences in New Mexico to conduct business and hold a strategic planning session for future PMRA activities and goals. If any of you in the PMRA membership has ideas or suggestions for us to consider, please email me at fberry@fsu.edu with your thoughts and I'll convey them to the Board.

I hope to see many of you next month at the NASPAA/APPAM conference.

Best regards,

Fran Berry

Frank Sherwood Professor of Public Administration

Askeew School of Public Administration and Policy

Florida State University

PMRA President 2013-2015

For the Latest News and Information from the Public Management Research Association

Visit Our Website at:

www.pmranet.org

2015 PMRA Call for Proposals

We are pleased to open the Call for Proposals for the 2015 Public Management Research Association (PMRA) Conference. The conference will take place in Minneapolis, Minnesota, USA June 11 – 13, 2015. There will also be a number of pre-conference sessions and workshops on June 9 – 10, 2015.

The conference will be hosted by the Hubert H. Humphrey School of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota. The program committee for the 2015 conference welcomes paper, panel, and poster proposals that feature high quality conceptual, qualitative, or quantitative research. In addition, the committee welcomes proposals for pre-conference sessions and workshops. All proposals will be peer reviewed.

In general, conference themes will emerge from the proposals submitted. However, we also believe two important themes merit particular attention at this time in the field's development. We invite consideration of the following two themes in proposed papers, panels, posters, and pre-conference sessions:

-- The relationship of public management with democracy and citizenship. Relevant topics might include, for example:

- Performance management and public values
- Civic engagement and public participation
- Co-production
- The proper role of government

-- The challenges of integrating different kinds of theoretical and empirical approaches to scholarship. Examples might include:

- Papers or sessions that exemplify rigorous blending of theoretical and empirical work in innovative ways
- Analyses of significant public management challenges and how theory and empirical research can be used to address them.

The Call for Proposals and conference website can be found at: <http://www.cce.umn.edu/Public-Management-Research-Conference/index.html>.

All proposals for papers, panels, posters, and pre-conference workshops should be submitted via the website. Proposals must be submitted by October 31, 2014. We look forward to receiving your proposal!

-- John Bryson and Jodi Sandfort

Co-Chairs

2015 PMRA Conference Program Committee

her dissertation, "Crafting a Performance Management Culture: Informal Institutions and Education Reform." In August, she joined the School of Policy, Government, and International Affairs at George Mason University as an Assistant Professor.

Beryl Radin (Georgetown University) received the 2014 Routledge Award from the International Research Society for Public Management (IRSPM). The award recognizes Radin for her public service and excellence in public management research topics such as performance indicators, administrative reform, accountability, and leadership. Radin accepted the award in April at the 18th Annual IRSPM Conference at Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada.

George Frederickson and Rosemary O'Leary, both Stene Distinguished Professors at University of Kansas, co-edited a special issue of The American Review of Public Administration on "Local Government Management" published in July 2014.

Kelly LeRoux (UIC) and Mary K. Feeney (ASU) have a new textbook: Non-profit Organizations and Civil Society in the United States (Routledge). Their text focuses on nonprofit organizations and their contributions to the social, political, and economic dimensions of society. This text offers a theory-oriented, interdisciplinary introduction to the nonprofit field and an examination of the multifaceted roles these organizations play in American society.

Bradley E. Wright joined the University of Georgia as Professor and Head of the Department of Public Administration and Policy, School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Georgia. Prior to joining UGA, he was a faculty member at Georgia State University and UNC Charlotte. Professor Wright serves as the Editor of the Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory and holds a Ph.D. from the State University of New York at Albany.

Tima T. Moldogaziev joined the faculty of the Department of Public Administration and Policy, School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Georgia. He comes to UGA from the University of South Carolina. Dr. Moldogaziev's primary research and teaching interests in public finance are financial intermediation, municipal securities pricing and liquidity, municipal debt market regulation, market-building and access to capital for subnational governments. The Department of Public Administration and Policy in the School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Georgia is pleased to announce the appointments of Deborah A. Carroll as

UNC-Chapel Hill will Host 2017 Public Management Research Association Conference

Although it may be too early to book your plane tickets, we are very pleased to announce that the School of Government at the University of North Carolina (UNC) at Chapel Hill will be hosting the 14th Biennial Public Management Research Conference (PMRC) in the summer of 2017.

The 2017 PMRC site co-coordinators will be Professors Leisha DeHart-Davis and Rick Morse, who are working with a planning committee that includes four other faculty members of the School of Government. The UNC School of Government was one of four PMRA member institutions to submit exceptionally strong proposals to host the 2017 conference. The site selection committee members—including Anna Amirkhanyan, John Bryson, Carolyn Heinrich (chair), Larry O'Toole, Chris Skelcher and Brad Wright—followed a detailed rating system and engaged in considerable deliberations to select the 2017 PMRC host.

The criteria considered included: (1) the tentative program agenda, pre-conference workshops and proposed conference dates; (2) the number of conference participants that could be accommodated; (3) conference facilities and accommodations; (4) registration fees and institutional commitments and capacity; (5) transportation options and costs; (6) conference website and registration provisions; (7) prior institutional experience in hosting conferences, and (8) distinctive features such as thematic elements, hospitality, keynotes or other special features.

“We are thrilled to be hosting the world's leading public management researchers at UNC-Chapel Hill,” said 2017 conference organizer Leisha DeHart-Davis, Associate Professor of Public Administration and Government. “We look forward to showcasing the School of Government's model of engaged scholarship that marries public management theory with practice.”

Please stay tuned at the PMRA website (<http://www.pmrnet.org/>) for future details on the 2017 PMRC in North Carolina.

Any questions about the PMRC 2017 site selection process or decision can be directed to Carolyn Heinrich at cheinrich@austin.utexas.edu.

Position Announcements

University of North Carolina at Charlotte (1 MPA director position)

The Department of Political Science & Public Administration seeks a Program Director at the associate professor rank to begin July 1, 2015. The Director will lead the Department's NASPAA-accredited and nationally ranked Gerald G. Fox Master of Public Administration Program, and also contribute to the Ph.D. in Public Policy.

Required qualifications: a Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Policy, Political Science, or related field at the time of appointment; primary research and teaching interests in one of the core areas of public administration including human resource management, organization theory, public management, nonprofit management, or public budgeting and financial management; demonstrated excellence or strong potential in research that will contribute to and enhance the department's national reputation; and a commitment to teaching in a diverse environment.

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte is a doctoral, research intensive university, located in one of the nation's fastest growing metropolitan areas on an expanding modern campus. One of sixteen campuses in one of the oldest public university systems in the United States, UNC Charlotte offers over 27,000 culturally diverse students a wide range of undergraduate and graduate degree programs. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences houses 20 departments in the humanities, social and behavioral sciences, physical sciences, and military sciences, as well as eight research centers and institutes and 13 interdisciplinary programs.

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration has 22 faculty members, houses a NASPAA-accredited MPA Program, and is a core department in the interdisciplinary Ph.D. Program in Public Policy. The MPA Program operates in an urban environment where it has strong ties to local government and non-profit organizations, as well as the local chapters of the American Society for Public Administration and the National Forum for Black Public Administrators. The program offers courses both on the main campus and at the university's Center City Building in downtown Charlotte. Additional information on the MPA Program can be obtained at: <http://www.mpa.uncc.edu>.

Review of applications begins November 1st and continues until the position is filled. Candidates should submit application materials electronically to <http://jobs.uncc.edu>. Please upload the following documents with your electronic application: (1) letter of application discussing your research accomplishments and agenda, and teaching experience and philosophy, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) evidence of teaching effectiveness (if available), and (4) names and contact information for three references. Letters of recommendation will be required later.

For questions regarding the position, please contact Dr. Suzanne Leland (704-687-5937, smleland@uncc.edu). UNC Charlotte is an AA/EOE and an ADVANCE Institution that strives to create an academic climate MPA Director and Robert K. Christensen as Ph.D. Director.

The School of Public Affairs at American University (AU) congratulates Dean Barbara Romzek on receiving the 2014 John Gaus Award from the American Political Science Association (APSA). Dean Romzek gave the 29th John Gaus Distinguished Lecture in late August at APSA's annual meeting in Washington, D.C. Her lecture will be published in an upcoming issue of PS: Political Science & Politics.

The Journal of Public Policy is making changes to its leadership structure. Professors Andrew Whitford, Alexander M. Crenshaw Professor of Public Policy in the School of Public & International Affairs at the University of Georgia, and Fabrizio Gilardi, Professor of Political Science in the Department of Political Science at the University of Zurich, have joined the team as new editors. Andy and Fabrizio bring outstanding intellectual resources and an international network of scholars in political science, organizations and management, and policy studies to the journal at a critical time. Tony Bertelli has moved to New York University to become Vice Dean and Professor of Public Policy, Politics, and Law in the Robert F. Wagner School of Public Service. The editorial office has moved to NYU, and Tony is now Senior Executive Editor of the Journal of Public Policy. Peter John (University College London) is now Senior Editor.

The Department of Public Administration & Policy at American University congratulates Susannah Bruns Ali (Florida International University), Michael Hayes (Rutgers-Camden), and Sarah Pettijohn (University of North Carolina-Charlotte) on their recent academic placements.

H. George Frederickson, Alisa Moldavanova, and Edmund C. Stazyk received the L. Douglas Wilder School Award for Scholarship in Social Equity and Public Policy Analysis for their article, "Sustainability, Intergenerational Social Equity, and the Socially Responsible Organization," which is forthcoming in Administration & Society.

The University of Southern California Sol Price School of Public Policy (USC Price) established a new Master of Nonprofit Leadership and Management degree program. The program will enroll its inaugural class in the summer of 2015.

USC Price also welcomed nine new faculty members this fall.

Ali Abbas, (Ph.D. in Management Science and Engineering, Stanford University), serves as Director of the Center for Risk and Economic Analysis of Terror-in which the dignity of all individuals is respected and maintained. We celebrate diversity that includes, but is not limited to ability/disability, age, culture, ethnicity, gender, language, race, religion, sexual orientation, and socio-economic status. Applicants are subject to criminal background checks.

University of Georgia (2 positions)

The Department of Public Administration and Policy in the School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Georgia invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor or tenured associate professor position with appointment to begin in August 2015.

The position requires a research and teaching focus on public management; expertise and interest in the field of public personnel administration is desirable. Ideal candidates will have the ability to teach core courses in the Master of Public Administration curriculum, such as public management, public personnel administration, public administration and democracy, organization theory, and research methods, as well as electives in public personnel administration and/or public management.

Evidence of high-quality research and an active research agenda along with a commitment to excellence in instruction are necessary. Candidates with demonstrated success in securing external research funding are especially encouraged to apply. A PhD in public administration, public affairs, political science, or a related field is required.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, and three letters of reference. Applicants invited for interviews may also be required to provide graduate transcripts, teaching evaluations, and/or example(s) of scholarly research. All applications received by November 1, 2014 are assured full consideration.

Submit application materials either as email attachments to bdcamp@uga.edu or by mail to Public Management/Public Personnel Recruitment Committee, Department of Public Administration and Policy, School of Public and International Affairs, 204 Baldwin Hall, The University of Georgia, Athens, GA 30602-1615.

The University of Georgia's School of Public & International Affairs, Department of Public Administration and Policy invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in public policy. Appointment begins in August 2015. Candidates should demonstrate a substantive policy specialization, but the area of specialization is open. A Ph.D. in public policy, economics, public administration, political science, or other appropriate discipline is required.

Teaching is predominately at the graduate level (2 courses per semester) and includes courses in quantitative methods, policy analysis, policy process, or program evaluation, and other substantive policy courses. Successful candidates will contribute to both our MPA and Ph.D. programs with a commitment to quality teaching, and evidence of research productivity. Applications should include a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, and three letters of recommendation.

Applications received by November 15, 2014 are guaranteed full consideration. Applications should be sent either as email attachments to bdcamp@uga.edu or by mail to:

Public Policy Recruitment Committee, Department of Public Administration & Policy, School of Public & International Affairs, 204 Baldwin Hall, The University of Georgia, Athens, GA 30602-1615.

The University of Georgia is ranked 4th among Public Affairs schools by U.S. News & World Report. For more information, visit www.padp.uga.edu. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, or protected veteran status.

Harvard Kennedy School

(1 position)

The Harvard Kennedy School is conducting a search for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning in the Fall 2015 semester in the broad fields of operations management and service delivery, with a particular emphasis on issues relevant to public and/or nonprofit organizations.

In terms of teaching and research interests, we especially welcome candidates working on such topics as service delivery process design and performance measurement; the make-buy decision and contracting management; the management of information technology; and logistics/supply chain management.

Candidates with other interests are also welcome to apply, with an explanation of how your teaching and research interests are relevant to managing operations in public and/or nonprofit organizations.

Qualifications for appointment include a distinguished Ph.D. record, strong evidence of a commitment to research, strong teaching skills, and an interest in research on operations issues related to the public and/or nonprofit sector.

We are particularly interested in candidates who take a behavioral approach to operations management, and candidates whose work is predominantly empirical (e.g. experimental/econometric/qualitative field work).

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, list of references, teaching evaluations, and at least one research paper online at: <https://academicpositions.harvard.edu/postings/5711>.

We will begin considering applications on November 7, 2014, and continue to do so until the position is filled.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

University of Central Florida, Center for Public & Nonprofit Management (CPNM)

(2 positions)

The School of Public Administration (SPA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applicants for two faculty positions to enhance research capacity of the SPA's Center for Public and Nonprofit Management (CPNM). The positions are 9 month, tenured/tenure track openings with a start date of August 2015.

ism Events (CREATE), housed jointly in the Price School.

Alice Chen (Ph.D. in Economics, University of Chicago) joins USC Price as Assistant Professor, with expertise in health economics, labor economics, and applied microeconomics.

Kathleen Doherty (Ph.D. in Politics, University of Virginia), Assistant Professor, specializes in American political institutions, bureaucratic delegation, administrative expertise, political and judicial oversight of bureaucracy, public policy, and pharmaceutical drug policy.

Nicolas Duquette (Ph.D. in Economics, University of Michigan), Assistant Professor, focuses on nonprofit economics, public finance, and economic history.

Paul Ginsburg (Ph.D. in Economics, Harvard University) is USC Price's Professor of the Practice of Health Policy and Management as well as Norman Topping Chair in Medicine and Public Policy. He specializes in health policy, health care financing and delivery, and health care markets, having most recently served as President of the Center for Studying Health System Change.

Geraldine Knatz (Ph.D. in Biological Science, University of Southern California), Professor of the Practice of Policy and Engineering, has expertise in seaport policy and management, maritime transportation, international trade, and seaport sustainability, and is a member of the National Academy of Engineering. She is former director of the Port of Los Angeles and will conduct research in affiliation with the Price School's METRANS Transportation Center.

Donald Morgan (Ph.D. in Public Administration, University of Southern California), Adjunct Associate Professor, is also the Interim Director of the Price School's Master of Nonprofit Leadership and Management Program. His expertise is in nonprofits and philanthropy, theories of cross-sectoral governance, and developing public, nonprofit, and private sector roles in community and economic development.

Julie M. Zissimopoulos (Ph.D. in Economics, University of Southern California), Assistant Professor, and Associate Director of Schaeffer Center for Health Policy and Economics, has expertise in the economics of aging, the economics of the family, labor economics, and health economics.

William G. Resh (Ph.D. in Public Administration and American Politics, American University), Assistant Professor, has a forthcoming book, Rethinking the Administrative

The School: The School offers a B.A./B.S. in Public Administration, a NASPAA accredited Master of Public Administration (MPA), Master of Nonprofit Management (MNM), Master of Research Administration and a Master of Science in Urban and Regional Planning in both on-line and face-to-face modalities.

The School's MPA and MNM programs are ranked in the Top 100 Graduate Programs (in each area) in the U.S. News & World Report National Rankings. The School also offers undergraduate minors and graduate certificate programs in Urban and Regional Planning, Nonprofit Management, and Emergency Management and Homeland Security. Faculty of the School also participates in the Ph.D. program in Public Affairs, an interdisciplinary program housed within the College of Health and Public Affairs.

The Center: The mission of the CPNM is to strengthen communities through relevant research and capacity building services to public and nonprofit organizations. Four core research areas define research activity of CPNM affiliated faculty and students, working across disciplines: Civic Engagement & Democracy, Collaborative Governance, Diversity & Inclusiveness, and Sustainability.

Professor and Director of the Center for Public and Nonprofit Management (CPNM) (Position #37214)

The successful applicant will be expected to strengthen the community-engaged research of the CPNM, provide strategic direction for CPNM's future growth, maintain and strengthen existing multi-year CPNM initiatives, develop new community-based initiatives, and oversee the development of growing national and international research initiatives and training partnerships.

Furthermore, and broadly defined, the successful applicant will maintain an individually active research agenda in public and/or nonprofit management to include ongoing applications for and receipt of grants and contracts from multiple governmental and non-governmental sources. The successful applicant will represent CPNM research activity to external constituencies, as well as teach in the graduate programs in public and nonprofit management for the SPA.

Required Qualifications: The successful applicant will have a Ph.D. in public administration or other relevant fields from an accredited institution; Experience as a center/institute director or department chair; record of receiving external funding from non-governmental and governmental sources.

Additional Preferred Qualifications: Experience conducting community-engaged research and engaging practitioners in translating research into practice; A record of successful scholarly publications of community-engaged research; Demonstrated ability for working in inter-disciplinary research teams; Commitment to partnering and mentoring colleagues, as well as students to enhance research; A record of strong teaching performance.

Associate Professor and Research Associate in the CPNM (Position #32212)

The successful applicant will be expected to help strengthen the community-engaged research activity of the CPNM, support CPNM's future growth, and develop community-based research and service initiatives. Furthermore and broadly defined, the successful applicant will maintain an individually active research agenda in public and/or nonprofit management to include ongoing applications for and receipt of grants and contracts from multiple governmental and non-governmental sources.

Lastly, the successful candidate will work collaboratively with the Director of the Center for Public and Nonprofit Management and other CPNM leadership and staff in all of these activities. The applicant will teach in the graduate programs in public and nonprofit management in SPA.

Required Qualifications: The successful applicant will have a Ph.D. in public administration or other relevant fields from an accredited institution; A record of receiving external funding from non-governmental and governmental sources.

Additional Preferred Qualifications: Experience conducting community-engaged research and engaging practitioners in translating research into practice; record of successful scholarly publications of community-engaged research; Demonstrated ability for working in inter-disciplinary research teams; record of strong teaching performance.

Application Process: To apply for these positions, please visit www.jobswithucf.com and attach the following information to complete your application package: (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a letter of application (indicating the specific position of application and describing your experience and qualifications); and (3) the names, addresses and phone numbers of three professional references.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply, including minorities, women, veterans and individuals with disabilities. As a Florida public university, UCF makes all application materials available to the public upon request. For further questions about the position, please contact Charmaine Vote, Coordinator of Administrative Services at Charmaine.Vote@ucf.edu.

University of Central Florida,
School of Public Administration
(1 director position)

Job Description: The School of Public Administration invites applicants for the position of director of the school, a 12-month tenured position at the associate or full professor level, to begin July 2015.

The successful candidate will provide academic and administrative leadership (i.e., management of human resources, budget, strategic planning, academic programming, fundraising), facilitate programs of individual and collaborative research, support and mentor faculty in necessary steps to secure external funding, work with the chairs and directors of other departments/schools within the college to promote the college mission, and promote a collegial and collaborative environment.

The School of Public Administration offers a B.A./B.S. in Public Administration, a NASPAA accredited Master of Public Administration (MPA), Master of Nonprofit Management (MNM), Master of Research Administration and a Master of Science in Urban and Regional Planning in both on-line and face-to-face modalities.

Presidency, exploring appointee-careerist relations in the federal executive branch.

A landmark article co-authored by Price faculty Robert Denhardt and Janet Denhardt, "The New Public Service: Serving Rather than Steering," published in Public Administration Review, was selected as one of the 75 most influential articles to appear within PAR's pages since its inception in 1940.

Several books by USC Price faculty recently were published. Among them:

Tridib Banerjee, Professor and James Irvine Chair in Urban and Regional Planning, edited the four-volume set Urban Design (Routledge; Critical Concepts in Urban Studies series).

Vinayak Bharne, a USC Price adjunct associate professor, published Zen Spaces in Neon Places: Reflections on Japanese Architecture and Urbanism (Applied Research & Design).

Terry Cooper, Maria B. Crutcher, Professor in Citizenship and Democratic Values, co-edited Achieving Ethical Competence for Public Service Leadership (M.E. Sharpe).

Janet Denhardt, Chester A. Newland Professor of Public Administration and Director of the USC Price School in Sacramento and Robert B. Denhardt, Professon (Teaching) and Director of USC Price's Leadership Programs co-edited Organizational Behavior (Sage).

Richard Green, Professor and Director and Chair of the Lusk Center for Real Estate, published Introduction to Mortgages & Mortgage Backed Securities (Elsevier Academic Press).

Daniel Mazmanian, Professor and Academic Director of the Schwarzenegger Institute for State and Global Policy, and Hilda Blanco, Research Professor and Interim Director of the Center for Sustainable Cities, co-edited the Elgar Companion to Sustainable Cities: Strategies, Methods and Outlook (Edward Elgar).

Shui Yan Tang, Professor and Frances R. and John J. Duggan Professor in Public Administration, co-authored Institutions, Regulatory Styles, Society and Environmental Governance in China (Routledge).

The 2014 Economic Report of the President cited analysis by USC Price Assistant Professor Vivian Wu to suggest that reducing excessive Medicare payments ultimately may generate savings for private insurers and consumers. Wu's research found that for each dollar of Medicare savings, private insurers realize additional savings of 55 cents.

Chester Newland, Frances R. and John J. Duggan Distin-

The school's MPA and MNM programs are ranked in the Top 100 Graduate Programs (in each area) in the U.S. News and Worlds Report National Rankings.

The school also offers undergraduate minors and graduate certificate programs in Urban and Regional Planning, Nonprofit Management, and Emergency Management and Homeland Security. Faculty of the school also participate in the Ph.D. program in Public Affairs, an interdisciplinary program housed within the College of Health and Public Affairs.

The University of Central Florida (UCF) is the second largest university in the United States, located in Orlando, Florida, with a student population of approximately 60,000 students. The school is within the College of Health and Public Affairs, one of twelve academic colleges within UCF, and both the university and college stress the importance of community engagement and partnerships, and offer the unique opportunity for collaborative research and work with dedicated community professions in a wide range of policy and management areas, both within and outside of academia.

Position Minimum Qualifications: A Ph.D. from an accredited institution in Public Administration or Policy, or a D.P.A., and have previously achieved the rank of at least a tenured associate professor in his or her academic career. Additionally, the successful candidate must have prior experience serving in an administrative capacity within higher education, such as serving in such role(s) as program coordinator, center director, department chair, dean, or other appropriate leadership level experience within the university setting.

The successful candidate will be a person who would be eligible for appointment as a tenured associate or full professor upon hire and, therefore, have a distinguished record of scholarly achievement and teaching experience commensurate with a tenured faculty appointment at the rank of associate or full professor.

Preferences: Candidates who have budget management experience, the ability to effectively articulate and further the visions of the school, and the ability to develop and maintain productive collaborative relationships with university administrators, faculty, staff, students and alumni. Finally, the successful candidate should have a vision and the skill set needed for engagement with community stakeholders and with individuals affiliated with state and federal agencies, foundations, and other nongovernmental organizations through community partnerships.

Additional Application Materials Required: To apply for this position, please visit www.jobswithucf.com and attach the following information: 1) a curriculum vitae; 2) a letter of intent succinctly describing your experience as related to the candidate qualifications delineated above, as well as your vision for the school; and 3) the names, addresses, and phone numbers of five professional references.

NOTE: Applicants must have all documents ready when applying online so they can be attached at that time. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents at a later date.

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. UCF is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply, including minorities, women, veterans and individuals with disabilities. As a Florida public university, UCF makes all application materials available to the public upon request. For further questions about the position, please contact James Beckman, Search Committee Chair, at James.Beckman@ucf.edu

University of Arizona (1 position)

The School of Government and Public Policy at the University of Arizona invites applications for a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level in public management beginning in fall 2015. The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. in public administration, political science, sociology, or a related discipline with an emphasis on nonprofit management. The field is open, but with a preference for candidates with training/backgrounds in organization theory and demonstrated skills in quantitative analysis. Candidates will contribute to teaching non-profit management courses in the School's Masters of Public Administration (MPA) program. In addition, the candidate will be expected to have a strong and active research program that will support the mentoring of Ph.D. students, contribute to teaching Ph.D. seminars, and is reflected in an excellent publication record.

The School is seeking an individual who is able to work with diverse students and colleagues, and who has experience with a variety of teaching methods and curricular perspectives. As an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer, the University of Arizona recognizes the power of a diverse community and encourages applications from individuals with varied experiences, perspectives, and backgrounds.

Outstanding UA benefits include health, dental and vision insurance plans; sick leave and holidays; UA/ASU/NAU tuition reduction for employee and qualified family members; state and optional retirement plans; access to UA recreation and cultural activities; and more.

*Candidates will be expected to maintain an active, vibrant and recognized research program.

*Candidates will be expected to teach two courses per semester at either the graduate or undergraduate level.

*The successful candidate will have a PhD in public administration, political science, sociology, or a related discipline with an emphasis on nonprofit management.

*The field is open, but with a preference for candidates with training/backgrounds in organization theory and demonstrated skills in quantitative analysis.

*Candidates will have a demonstrated record of excellence in published research, teaching and service.

A formal application may be made at <https://www.uacareertrack.com/>, job posting number 56596. Application review will begin Monday, November 3, 2014 continue until position is filled.

Candidates should submit a Letter of Interest, Statement of Research and Teaching Interests, current Curriculum Vitae and a Writing Sample that is reflective of your ongoing research to www.uacareertrack.com. Letters guished Professor Emeritus in Public Administration at USC Price, received a University of Southern California Faculty Lifetime Achievement Award "for his passionate dedication to public service and magnificent contributions to the university and the Price School of Public Policy."

Leonard Mitchell, Professor of the Practice of Economic Development and Executive Director of USC Price's Center for Economic Development, received a University of Southern California Mellon Mentoring Award for his mentorship of graduate students.

In a joint effort between the city of Los Angeles and USC Price's Center for Economic Development (CED), Southern California received federal designation as one of 12 "Manufacturing Communities" nationwide, giving the region preferential access to $1.3 billion in government funds for local aerospace and advanced manufacturing industries.

The University of Connecticut Department of Public Policy and the Neag School of Education welcome Assistant Professor Joshua Hyman. His research interests include public finance, labor economics, and education policy. He recently earned his Ph.D. in Economics and Public Policy from the University of Michigan.

The University of Connecticut Department of Public Policy is pleased to announce three recent editorial appointments. Bill Simonsen is Editor of Public Budgeting & Finance. Bill shares his editorial duties with Professor and Interim Dean Philip Joyce from the Maryland School of Public Policy. Ken Couch was selected as Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Policy Analysis and Management with University of Connecticut as its editorial home. Ken is a Professor of Economics and an affiliated faculty member of the Department of Public Policy. Eric Brunner is now an Associate Editor of Education Finance and Policy.

Janice Popp, H. Brinton Milward, Gail MacKean, Ann Casebeer, and Ron-Lindstrom published a report entitled "Inter-Organizational Networks: A Review of the Literature to Inform Practice" for the IBM Center for The Business of Government. The report examines the literature on interorganizational networks that has evolved over the past decade, and is written from the perspective of a wide range of academic disciplines, such as sociology, business management, public administration, and political science. The report can be found at <http://www.businessofgovernment.org/report/inter-organizational-networks-review-literature-inform-practice>.

of Reference and Teaching Evaluations (if applicable) can be submitted electronically to Angela Hackett at ahackett@email.arizona.edu or mailed to the department address provided in this ad.

The School of Government and Public Policy is housed within the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences, and is home to an interdisciplinary faculty and a variety of degree programs including the MPP and the NASPAA accredited Masters of Public Administration (MPA) program, as well as a Ph.D. program. Additional information on the School of Government and Public may be found at <http://sgpp.arizona.edu/>.

American University, School of Public Affairs, Washington Institute for Public Affairs Research (WIPAR) (1 director position)

The School of Public Affairs at American University invites applications for a faculty position at the rank of associate or full professor to serve as director of its Washington Institute for Public Affairs Research (WIPAR).

The director will report to the Dean of the School of Public Affairs (SPA) and will support faculty in developing innovative research projects, securing external funding to support that work, organizing multi-faculty research projects, and connecting with policymakers who can put research findings into practice.

With over 60 faculty members currently engaged in public affairs research, the School of Public Affairs seeks to spur groundbreaking research that will contribute to the major public policy issues of our time. Depending on qualifications, the appointee to this position may be recommended for tenure at the time of hiring.

The successful candidate will provide leadership in tapping the existing capabilities of SPA faculty and crafting funding strategies to foster research pertinent to critical policy issues. Among other things, the director will provide support for current faculty seeking external research funding, help build teams of scholars in SPA and beyond to seek major research funding, and facilitate partnerships with other research institutions.

Qualifications: Applicants should hold a doctoral degree in a relevant field, e.g., political science, criminal justice, or public policy. Prior leadership experience in grant writing or management is necessary, as is past work in a university, foundation, or research setting. Salary and benefits are competitive.

Application Instructions: Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled, subject to ongoing budgetary approval. Salary and benefits are competitive. Please submit applications via: apply.interfolio.com/26606. Include a letter of application, curriculum vita, and name and contact information for three references.

American University is a private institution within easy reach of many centers of government, business, research, and arts located in the nation's capital. For more information about American University, visit www.american.edu.

Established in 1934, the School of Public Affairs offers undergraduate and graduate programs in the departments of Government; Justice, Law, & Criminology; and Public Administration & Policy. The School's programs are consistently ranked among the best in the field of public affairs by U.S. News & World Report. Learn more about the School of Public Affairs at www.american.edu/spa.

American University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action institution that operates in compliance with applicable laws and regulations. The university does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, sex (including pregnancy), age, sexual orientation, disability, marital status, personal appearance, gender identity and expression, family responsibilities, political affiliation, source of income, veteran status, an individual's genetic information or any other bases under federal or local laws (collectively "Protected Bases") in its programs and activities. American University is a tobacco and smoke free campus.

Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey (2 positions)

The School of Public Affairs and Administration at the Newark Campus of Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey, is seeking candidates for up to two tenured positions at the Associate or Full Professor level. We invite applications from highly productive researchers with an exemplary record of scholarly publications in the field of public management, broadly defined. Experience with, or interest in, teaching students with diverse cultural backgrounds is also important.

Appointees will be core faculty members in a NASPAA-accredited public administration program that is ranked 7th nationally in Public Management/Administration by US News and holds six other top-25 rankings in Public Affairs and Administration. As a major public university in New Jersey's largest city, the Newark Campus of Rutgers provides students with the knowledge and preparation necessary for leadership roles in an increasingly complex society, with particular attention to its public mission and building a civic dialogue.

The campus is the most diverse national university in the United States and is ranked twelfth among doctoral degree-granting small universities in the country.

The School of Public Affairs and Administration actively engages with the nonprofit and government communities in the greater-Newark metro area. The School offers an undergraduate major in public and nonprofit administration, an on-campus M.P.A., a fully online M.P.A., an Executive M.P.A., and a research-oriented Ph.D. Faculty are also involved in nine certificate programs. Total enrollment is more than 1000 degree and non-degree students. Teaching, published research, and community engagement are all important to the School.

Candidates must hold an earned doctorate in public administration or a related field. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until outstanding candidates are found.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability, protected veteran status or any other classification protected by law. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply.

Joaquin Herranz, Jr. (University of Washington) is now Senior Associate Dean for Academic Programs at the Daniel J. Evans School of Public Affairs.

To ensure full consideration, candidates should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, teaching interests, and list of references via email. Submit applications to: Ms. Hilary Halliwell, hh371@andromeda.rutgers.edu. Questions should be addressed to: Dr. Suzanne Piotrowski, Chair, Faculty Search Committee at spiotrow@andromeda.rutgers.edu. Please consult the School and Campus websites for further information (<http://spaa.newark.rutgers.edu> and <http://www.newark.rutgers.edu>).

Georgia State University (2 positions)

The Department of Public Management and Policy seeks strong researchers and teachers for two tenure-track positions, beginning Fall 2015. One position will be at the assistant professor level; the other position is open rank.

The department focuses on four areas of excellence: nonprofit management and policy; program evaluation and policy analysis; management and finance of public and nonprofit organizations; and economic development and urban policy. The department primarily seeks to bolster our strength in nonprofit management and program evaluation/policy analysis, but applicants from other fields are also encouraged. Ability to teach microeconomics and/or develop online courses is desirable. A senior candidate with the correct fit could be named to the Dan Sweat Chair in Education Policy.

The Andrew Young School ranks 23rd overall among graduate programs in public affairs in the US News rankings, as well as 4th in public budgeting and finance, 12th in nonprofit management, 12th in city management/urban policy, 24th in public policy analysis, and 26th in public management/administration.

Our highly productive faculty supports junior colleagues in building academic careers. The department offers a NASPAA-accredited MPA, as well as undergraduate, master's, and doctoral degrees in public policy. Our policy research centers and our location in downtown Atlanta, at the heart of a vibrant public and nonprofit sector, provide excellent opportunities for applied research that contributes to policy-making and management at all levels of government.

Candidates should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, three letters of recommendation, a sample of scholarship, and any teaching evaluations to Chair, Faculty Search Committee, Department of Public Management and Policy, P.O. Box 3992, Georgia State University, Atlanta, GA 30302-3992. The position requires a doctorate in an appropriate field of study from an accredited university by August 2015.

Candidate must be eligible to work in the USA. At the time of offer, a background check will be required. Consideration of applications will begin on November 1, 2014, and will continue until the position is filled. Information about the Andrew Young School is available at www.aysps.gsu.edu. Georgia State University, a unit of the University System of Georgia, is an equal educational institution and an equal opportunity affirmative action employer. The position is subject to budgetary approval.

Syracuse University (2 positions)

The Department of Public Administration and International Affairs at Syracuse University's Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs seeks applications for two tenure track positions, assistant or associate, in the management of public and nonprofit organizations.

Applicants should have a strong commitment to teaching excellence and an active research agenda. Applicants should have a broad background in public administration and management, and we are particularly interested in individuals with primary expertise in areas that include human resource management, leadership in complex organizations, organizational behavior, management of a diverse workforce, and labor relations.

The successful candidates will have responsibilities that include teaching graduate courses, developing and maintaining an active, rigorous research agenda, student mentorship, and service activities. We welcome applications from people with a range of disciplinary backgrounds, including but not limited to public administration, nonprofit/NGO management, public policy, business administration, psychology and other social science fields.

The Department of Public Administration and International Affairs at the Maxwell School is home to the world's first MPA program, which is ranked first among more than 250 graduate public affairs programs in the United States (U.S. News & World Report). The department is also home to a top-ranked master's program in international relations (Foreign Policy magazine), a Ph.D. in public administration, a master's degree in public health, executive master's degrees in public administration and international relations, and a wide range of certificate programs. The Syracuse area boasts a high quality of life featuring a wide range of cultural, sporting and recreational activities. The City of Syracuse has been ranked as one of the most affordable cities to live in in the United States.

The Maxwell School seeks candidates whose research, teaching, or service has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity and inclusion in higher education. Applicants should submit materials online at <https://www.sujobopps.com>, and include a letter of application, curriculum vitae, and the names and contact information of three references. Review of applications will begin October 31, 2014 and continue until the positions are filled.

The Ohio State University (1 position)

Description: The School of Environment and Natural Resources (SENR; <http://senr.osu.edu>) is seeking an assistant or an associate professor of Environmental and Natural Resource Policy. This position is a full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position intended to build on our school's social science expertise and interdisciplinary work in social-ecological systems.

We seek a candidate with a demonstrated ability to apply social science theory to environmental and natural resource challenges and the desire to work as part of an interdisciplinary research team.

Preference will be given to candidates with demonstrated expertise and research interest in policy and governance aspects of water, climate change, and/or complex social-ecological systems. Demonstrated interest in international contexts is also desired, though not required.

The successful candidate will be expected to develop a extramurally-funded and nationally-recognized research program with a strong theoretical and methodological grounding in the applied social sciences (expertise in qualitative and/or quantitative methods), provide graduate advising and instruction, contribute to undergraduate instruction and advising (in the Environmental Policy & Decision Making and the Natural Resource Management programs) and provide professional and university service.

Requirements: An earned doctoral degree in political science, public policy, sociology, geography, natural resource management, or a related field of inquiry. The ideal candidate will have teaching and advising experience, history of theoretically grounded research with a successful publication record, and an ability to collaborate with social and natural scientists within SENR and other academic units at The Ohio State University.

Application Instructions: For a complete position description and application instructions please visit www.jobsatosu.com and search by requisition number 402489.

To apply, please send a curriculum vita, a letter of interest (summarizing expertise, research interests, teaching philosophy, and career goals), copies of three relevant publications or reports, and contact information for three qualified references to: Dr. Eric Toman, Search Committee Chair, ENRpolicy@osu.edu or 2021 Coffey Road, Columbus, Ohio 43210-1085.

The Ohio State University is an equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation or identity, national origin, disability status, or protected veteran status.

Brigham Young University (1 position)

The George W. Romney Institute of Public Management, Brigham Young University, seeks applications for a faculty position in its MPA program. Well-qualified candidates with a completed or nearly completed PhD in public administration, public policy analysis, political science, economics or a related field are sought.

Field and rank are open, but applications from those able to teach and conduct research in local government, finance and budgeting, or the non-profit sector will be particularly welcome. The Institute is interested in excellent teachers and active researchers, with a strong commitment to the public and non-profit sectors.

Housed in Brigham Young University's Marriott School of Management, the Institute offers an accredited MPA degree currently serving over 200 full and part-time students. Salary, teaching load, and research and travel support are competitive.

Review of applications and nominations will begin in October 2014, and will continue until the position is filled. Letters of application and inquiry should include research and teaching interests. Please include curriculum vitae and names and addresses for three references. Starting date will be Fall 2015.

Address inquiries to:

David Hart

Search Committee Chair

Romney Institute

Brigham Young University

760 TNRB

Provo, UT 84602

davidhart@byu.edu

Apply at yjobs.byu.edu. See posting number 140247FAC.

Quick Link: <http://yjobs.byu.edu/postings/4778>

Brigham Young University, an equal opportunity employer, does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, gender, age, national origin, veteran status, or against qualified individuals with disabilities. All faculty are required to abide by the university's honor code and dress and grooming standards. Preference is given to qualified candidates who are members in good standing of the affiliated church, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Management Matters

THE PMRA NEWSLETTER

PMRA Secretariat
School of Public Affairs & Administration
University of Kansas
4060 Wescoe Hall
1445 Jayhawk Blvd.
Lawrence, KS 66045